From the Imperial Camp under Melazzo.

A Journal from the 8th to the 16th of October, 1718, N. S.

ON the 8th, we pursued the Work of the Half-moon, for putting it into a State of Defence, as also in finishing the Fort de St. Paperin. The Enemy this Day extended their Camp on the Left Wing as far as the Sea, which made us judge that more Troops were come to them.

The 9th, the Enemy continued to fortify the Cassines which are round about the Place, but our Cannon upon the Bastions of Messina and Palermo, did them a great deal of Damage, and much interrupted their Work.

The 10th, arrived here the General of Horse Count Caraffa, from Naples, as also our Gallies, with the Batallion of Foldo, and five Men of War from the Fleet at Reggio; and at Midnight General Caraffa went to Reggio.

The 11th, the Enemy so well pursued their Work, that their Retrenchment and their Cassines were in pretty good Condition.

The 12th, they continued the same, and on the same Day Count Caraffa returned with the rest of the Imperial Troops that were still at Reggio, which were immediately follow'd by the Regiment of Dragoons of Tige from Naples. The said General and Lieutenant General Wallis went immediately to take Cogniance of the Enemy's Retrenchment, and found that if they left them Time to finish it, and to draw a Line of Contravallation, there would be Reason to doubt of our dislodging them, even with the Succours still to come: So that

On the 13th, a Council of War was held, and many General Officers being still wanting, the Colonels were call'd to it: And therein it was unanimously agreed to attack the Enemy by a General Sally, with 10 Batallions, and 6 Squadrons of the Regiment of Dragoons of Tige.

The 14th, Preparations were made, and the necessary Orders were given to the Troops: And we sallied in the Night, on the Left of the Bastion of Palermo, with great Silence, and keeping to the Right towards the Sea, to which all the Cannon of the Polygon of the Messina Gate were directed. The Batallions were, one of Count Guido Staremburg, two of Maximilian Staremburg, two of Wetzel, one of Foldo, two of Wallis, two of Lorrain, and one of the Troops of Savoy.

The 15th in the Morning, after we had made a Discharge of all our Cannon as well on Land as from the Gallies, we attack'd the Enemy, who at break of Day were in Doubt, but kept themselves pretty well in Countenance. The Beginning was very sharp near the cover'd Cassines of the Retrenchments, but the Enemy were driven from them. The Horse were led by Lieutenant General Count Veterani, and the Foot by Lieutenant General Count Wallis, and the whole under the Command of Count Caraffa. We took the Cannon and Tents, and push'd the Enemy in some Places beyond their Camp. And in fine, they were upon the point of Flying, when 7 Batallions, and 2 Regiments of Horse, who came the same Night from Messina, but were not before come into their Camp, arriv'd, and attack'd so briskly our Left Wing, that we thought it advisable to retire under the Cannon of Melazzo, after we had fired their Tents, nailed up some Cannon, and the Enemy were themselves retir'd.

We find missing on our side General Veterani, who was taken Prisoner, and we may have 400 Men kill'd, and as many wounded. But the Enemy on their Side lost 2000 Men.

The 16th, we continued the Works in this Fortress, and the Enemy have begun to draw a Line towards the Sea, keeping for that purpose all their Infantry in Order of Battle. We hear by Deserters, that their Loss amounted to at least 2000 Men, and we having taken but 200 Prisoners, besides a General of Batalia Count Swerin, one Lieutenant Colonel, 20 Captains, and some other Officers, 'tis judged that the greatest Part of those 2000 Men were kill'd. The Enemy have without Doubt learnt by this Action the Quality of our Troops, and may perhaps change their Minds, when our Grand Succours arrive; altho' they lay great Stress upon their large Artillery, which is upon the Way to their Camp.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 11.

Naples, Oct. 18. Our Viceroy, accompanied by all the Generals who are here, is gone to Aversa, to make a Review of some Cavalry that are come from the Mantuan, and are to imbark for Sicily. We labour with great Diligence in Shipping a great Train of Artillery and Ammunition of all sorts, upon the Convoy design'd for Reggio. 'Tis said that 12000 Imperialists will forthwith pass from Reggio into Sicily, under the Command of General Caraffa, and that those Troops will form a Camp near Melazzo; and after they have received the 4000 Men of Reinforcement, who are coming from Genoa, and the Convoy which is preparing here, they will act offensively against the Spaniards. General Ro, who was taken Prisoner in Sicily by the Spaniards, having been releas'd upon his Parole of Honour, arrived here Yesterday, and had immediately the Honour to salute the Viceroy, with whom he had a long Conference, and is since gone to return to Reggio. 'Tis said Count Esterhasi, who is lately come hither from the Court of Vienna, has brought Orders from the Emperour for his Excellency, to establish a new Council of Finances, in Order to make a Fund of 120000 Ducats, to be employ'd in the Expences of the War. The Ten Commissioners named by the Barons, to consider of the Means of raising a Free Guist of 300000 Ducats, which they have resolved to make to the Emperour, Empereur, are daily employ'd in that Work; and 'tis said they have made a good Progress in it.
